The Williamburg Excursionists. WHAT THEY SAW-THE RETURN TRIP-INCI-DENTS ON THE VOYAGE.

[For the Dispatch.]

During the stay of our party in Williamsourg they made a tour of the town, almost every spot of which is connected with some leged to be held by him in trust for the use fact of historic interest; indeed, Williamstheatre of lively action both during the re-

THE INSANE ASYLUM

was visited, and while it presents much that is interesting and not a little that is laughable beyond measure, one is involuntarily filled with sad reflections upon contemplating the variety of causes which have interposed to prevent the natural workings of one or other faculty of so many of our fellow-creatures. What food of thought for the philosopher; and would he not exclaim, after a careful study of such a place : Ah! poor creatures; were a just estimate made of the faculties of all mankind your companions would be so numerous that the world would furnish one large asylum. How many did we see unusually bright in many respects, yet devoting the whole of their lives to some foolish and absurd monomania.

One patient imagined he had swallowed he American eagle, and walked about coughing violently in fruitless attempts to vomit him forth, at the same time looking up to see if the bird had flown. From the asylum our party (that is, with the exception of the middy, who remained not present a very lively picture, it being visitor upon his first entrance (especially to a pedestrian) seems to be a dull, inactive place. Such is not the case, however, for Opens the FIRST WEDNESDAY in September, ple, and though not overburdened with upon a stranger in their midst.

The factolum of the place is Mr. M. R. Harrell. He owns the hotel, the stage-lines, and extensive property in and around the burg. Above all, his genial and affable manner of dispensing hospitality was enchanting, and our party are indebted to has been thoroughly renovated and newly furnished | him for many kind attentions. It should have been mentioned that we dispatched the largest vehicle we could procure for our attenuated Captain K., who had been left by the wayside (he weighs only 260 pounds), and it was our great joy to see him reunited with the flock in time to partake of dinner.

THE RETURN TRIP

to our little steamer was effected much more felicitously to all parties than we had experienced on our advent. We were transported in one of Mr. Harrell's comfortable stages. Oh! that we could give that gentleman some title, such as major, colonel, or general. But he will not accept them, and that is one of the few ways in which a poor man can be generous.

At a huge spring about half-way on the road the commodore called a halt. Our navigator took an observation, and soon, with an exultant expression beaming from his countenance, pointed to the side of a log near by, and exclaimed, "It is there!" We repaired to the spot and found hid beneath the leaves what we at first took to be one of his instruments of observation, but it bottles of claret, which beverage the aforeand an indispensable auxilliary to the success of astronomical observations.

It should have been mentioned that the majority of officers of this expedition (they were three in number) were members of the

MARION RIFLES. a company of the Fifteenth Virginia regiment, which figured very extensively at the beginning of the war in that section of the to visit their old camping-grounds, that induced us to make the excursion. As may be well imagined, each point at which the Marion Rifles had staked their tents was pointed out, many anecdotes connected therewith related, and their marches described. THE COMMODORE'S STORY of their march and approach to Williams burg was filled with thrilling interest. Said be: "Rumors had reached us that the enwere at or near Williamsburg, and skirmishers were to be deployed to advance before the regiment. I, with four others, volunteered in that capacity, and we advanced cautiously, singing at the top of our voices: not to frighten the enemy, nor that we were frightened ourselves-oh, no! but we sang just from a feeling of good-fellowship. It was in 'the dead waste and middle of the night' when a band of armed men (as we thought) appeared before 'Halt! Who goes there?' cried I; and simultaneously the regiment prepared for deadly combat. Oh, comrades, the cool perspiration stood upon my forehead in large trops. Would the answer be my death-kn. ll! Imagine my relief when a chorus of feeble voices responded, We are little boys come to see the sojers.' Never were ambassadors received with greater attention. They were introduced to the regiment, and assisted no little in filling canteens, carrying knapsacks and such like, until the foreign conversation of our dueutchess filled them with consternation. They soon one by one disappeared from our midst, and shortly the country around (much to our inconvenience) was rife with rumors of the 'Yankees are coming.' So we were taken for the enemy, and to surrender the town." FROM THE JAWS OF DEATH. Upon reaching the wharf we enjoyed a delightful surf-bath, the wind, and conse-

Edith out to her cable's length and the captain lost his footing. The spectators, awe-stricken, held their breath as they beheld that huge and manly form tottering for an inevitable fall into what seemed a watery grave. But an angel interposed in the person of the midshipman, who, fearlessly springing to the flag-pole, swung himself out, and, grasping the foot of the fall-ing captain, enabled him to regain his equilibrium and safely board the vessel.

A STORM ON THE JEEMS.

Our congratulations had scarcely been interchanged upon the fortunate rescue of our companion when we were impressed with a more serious cause for alarm. The sea was running so high for the little Edith that the most fearless had to abandon the forward deck; not, however, before the middy had been almost swept overboard by a huge wave. His sudden appearance in the cabin, dripping from head to foot, showed the party what danger was at hand, and filled with consternation our impious ambassador, who retired to a corner and knelt in silent prayer. After a run of three or four knots the storm had subsided, and all betook themselves to repose, to be awakened by the scream of the whistle which an-nounced "Home, sweet home." Cor.

TAXATION OF SCHOOL-PROPERTY-AN IN

reresting Decision .- Cleveland, Ohio, July 12.-A case that has attracted a great deal of public attention has been on trial in this city for several days past before Judge Jones, in the equity branch of the Common-Pleas Court, in which Bishop Gilmour, the Catholic bishop of this diocese, sought to enjoin the county treasurer from collecting some $3,900 of taxes assessed on lands alof the Catholic parochial schools. The were cross-examined exhaustively, and a large number of Papal documents, the decrees of various councils, the encyclical letter of the Pope, &c., were introduced by the defendant for the purpose of showing that the parochial schools were organized and conducted for purposes hostile to free institutions and opposed to the public policy of the State, and were not, therefore, to be construed as coming within the exemption clauses of the statutes, either as public schools or institutions purely of public charity, and to show that the Bishop holds the title to the property, not as trustee, but that he is absolutely accountable to the Pope of Rome. To-day Judge Jones, in an elaborate opinion, held that the establishment of these schools was not in any sense opposed to public policy unless they were tainted with illegality of origin, purpose, or tendency, or were in contravention of public morality; that the Bishop was really the trustee of the property for school purposes, and that a court of equity could enforce the trust; that the schoolproperty was not exempt as public-school property, but that being built and partially carried out by voluntary donetions and no income arising therefrom, they were exempt from taxation as institutions purely of public charity, and under the same laws as other sectarian colleges and institutions of the State, so far as general taxation was concerned, but not exempt from special assessments for sewers, paving, &c.

SENTENCE OF ANDERSON SHIFFLET .- Harwas crowded this morning with citizens of the murder of David G. Lawson. The prisoner, when asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced, made a rambling address, accusing the Messrs. Lam. and Burriss Williams of swearing falsely. He said: "All I did say was, if a man knows nothing he can say nothing. and that I thought it hard that the innocent should bear the blame and the guilty go free." Judge O'Ferrall then addressed the prisoner in an impressive manner, saying among other things: "You have imbued your hands in the blood of your fellowman, prompted by the promise of a few paltry dollars, and in deliberation and premeditation deprived Lawson of that life which had been given him by his Creator, and you stand now at the bar of justice to receive the avenging sentence of the broken law, 'Thou shalt not kill.'" PIZZINI is making Peach Ice-Cream. SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC .- In the atmosphere experienced here during the summer months, he lethargy produced by the heat takes away the desire for wholesome food, and frequent perspirations reduce bodily energy, particularly those suffering from the effects of debilitating diseases. In order to keep a natural, healthful activity of the system we must resort to artificial means. For this purpose SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC is very effectual. A few doses will create an appetite and give fresh vigor to the enervated body. For dyspepsia it is invaluable. Many eminent physicians have doubted whether dyspepsia can be permanently cured by the drugs which are generally employed for that purpose. The SEA-WEED TONIC in its nature is totally different from such drugs. It contains no corrosive minerals or acids; in fact, it assists the regular operations of nature and supplies her deficiencies. The juice that it is almost identical with that fluid. The gastric juice is the natural solvent which, in a healgested; and when this juice is not excreted in sufficlent quantities, indigestion, with all its distressing symptoms, follow. The SEA-WEED TONIC performs the duty of the gastric juice when the latter is deficient. SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC sold by all
